Welcome to the Joint Sessions of Workshops

Dear Participants

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 43rd Joint Sessions in this, Poland's largest university. It is the first time the Sessions have been hosted in Eastern Europe, something about which we are particularly happy. I would like to thank Janusz Adamowski, Stanisław Sulowski, Anna Sroka and Manuel Sánchez de Dios of our own Executive Committee, who have pursued this objective with great determination. Many difficulties had to be overcome but, to quote an expression I learnt in Poland many years ago, Wszystko jest możliwe, nic nie jest proste - 'Everything is possible, nothing is easy'.

It is a particular pleasure for me to return, after more than twenty years, to a radically transformed Poland and to an even more beautiful Warsaw.

Intense memories from my youth are associated with this country. As an Economics undergraduate I visited Poland on an internship in summer 1983. Food was rationed, surveillance was invasive, political science was not taught at the university! The 1980s Solidarność strikes were still fresh in everyone's mind, and the iconic leader of those strikes and future President of Poland, Lech Walęsa, had recently been released from prison.

Tension was palpable and, on the eve of the anniversary of the August 1981 Gdańsk strikes, tanks surrounded the dorm in which we lodged.

Of course, this was nothing compared to what the shipyard workers had had to endure, but it still gave me a vivid understanding of what it means to fight for democracy. It probably also contributed to my pursuing political science later in my graduate studies!

Allow me then to welcome you all to Warsaw and to wish you all a most fruitful and intense four days of discussion and socialisation.

Simona Piattoni Chair, ECPR Executive Committee, 2012 – 2015

Dear Participants

On behalf of the Faculty of Journalism and Political Science, I would like to welcome participants in the Joint Sessions of Workshops to the University of Warsaw. It is a great honour and pleasure for our institution to play host to such an activity.

The Faculty was established in 1975, and consists of five institutes: Political Science, Journalism, International Relations, Social Policy and most recently established, the Institute of European Studies.

One of our Faculty's priorities is to internationalise, in the field of education as well as in scientific research. Apart from conducting ten independent fields of study in Polish, we therefore also offer five fields of study in English and one in Russian.

Undertaking the organisation of the Joint Sessions of Workshops reflects our interest in strengthening scientific cooperation on an international scale.

I would like to wish you a productive and pleasant stay in Warsaw.

Janusz Adamowski Dean of the Faculty of Journalism and Political Science

Ladies and gentlemen

It is an honour for the University of Warsaw to host the Joint Sessions and it is with great personal pleasure that I welcome all the participants.

The University is one of the best and largest among the 400 institutions of higher education in Poland. The number of people who comprise our community (students, doctoral students and staff) exceeds 60,000. Among the 46,000 students, 1,500 are foreign students, attending full-time studies at our University. The same number of students arrives annually under the Erasmus and Erasmus Mundus programmes.

The University of Warsaw, which is made up of 20 faculties, cooperates with over 1,100 foreign partner universities from 64 countries. One of the largest is the Faculty of Journalism and Political Science with 5,800 students while the oldest is the Faculty of Law and Administration with 5,500 students. The University also includes 30 other academic and research units.

In its almost 200-year history, the University's purpose and aim has always been to raise awareness and promote debate for a better understanding of the social and political changes occurring around the world. Without doubt, organising the Joint Sessions with the ECPR brings a unique opportunity to further this long-held goal.

Let me, finally, wish you all effective and productive work at the Joint Sessions of Workshops, and may your stay at the University of Warsaw be truly inspiring.

Research and Liaison

The University of Warsaw

Now just shy of its 200th birthday, Poland's biggest University has nurtured the talents of no less than five Nobel prizewinners. Encompassing 20 faculties and almost 30 research units, it has also grown to become one of the region's major employers he University of Warsaw was founded by a decree issued in 1816 by Tsar Alexander I, and its history is inextricably linked with the history of Warsaw itself.

Closed following the November uprising of 1830, it reopened in 1862. Following another uprising, in January 1869, the University was replaced by the Russian language Imperial University of Warsaw, which continued until July 1915, when the German authorities permitted it to reopen as a Polish-language institution under its original emblem.

When Hitler seized Warsaw in 1939, the University was, like many others, closed down. But many of its staff risked their lives to continue their classes in secret, in private houses and religious spaces across the city.

The University's buildings, facilities and precious collections suffered colossal wartime damage. A plaque on the site of a former museum commemorates the students and employees of the University and Home Army killed in combat.

Still stifled after the war under the imposed cult of Stalin, the thaw of 1956 saw a re-emergence of authentic academic life.

Today, the University community consists of 46,000 students, 3,200 doctoral students and 4,000 post-diploma students. Scholars participate in more than 150 projects financed by European and other international funds and organisations.

The Institute of Political Science

Founded in 1967, and from 1975 a part of the Faculty of Journalism and Political Science, the Institute is the oldest and largest political science centre in Poland

s one of the few academic centres on the eastern side of the Iron Curtain, prior to 1989, the University of Warsaw's Institute of Political Science (INP) developed extensive research work in social and political science, taking full advantage of its intimate contacts with similar academic centres across Western Europe – in particular in France, Germany and the UK.

Cooperation of this sort has continued to this day resulting in, for instance, a joint degree programme (the so-called double diploma) with the University of Konstanz. The INP has taken the initiative in awarding the Doctor Honoris Causa degree to political scientists of world renown Professors Zbigniew Brzeziński and Hans Jacobsen, and to the Italian President Sandro Pertini.

During the transformation of Poland's political system, INP professors and lecturers created unique interdisciplinary teams, sharing their expertise in projects involving crucial state reforms, such as writing the country's new constitution.

The skills and competence of our academics continue to be in high demand. INP staff are invited by public sector organisations and NGOs to contribute their advice and guidance, often becoming members of long-term research partnerships and consultancies working within the state administration.

About the city of Warsaw

Lively and bursting with culture, Warsaw attracts tourists from all over the world with its mixture of tradition and modernity ll visitors to Warsaw should take a stroll through the alleys and squares of its romantic Old Town, and walk the Royal Route connecting Łazienki Królewskie and Wilanów. 17th-century Łazienki Park features beautiful landscaped gardens and the spectacular island Palace built for Poland's last monarch. Wilanów's stunning baroque palace and Italianate gardens are also not to be missed.

Museum culture

The Warsaw Uprising Museum, which opened in 2004 to mark the 60th anniversary of the Uprising, gives great insight into the city's wartime history. An architectural pearl, the Museum of the History of Polish Jews is also worth a visit.

Completed in 1955, the Palace of Culture and Science is the epitome of Socialist Realist architecture.
Still the tallest building in Poland, it houses theatres, museums, a cinema and concert hall. The 30th-floor viewing platform gives a panoramic view of the city. Science lovers should visit the Copernicus Science Centre, where you can even conduct your own scientific experiments!

The National Museum offers a rich collection of exhibits from antiquity to modern times, and classical music enthusiasts will be keen to visit the Fryderyk Chopin Museum – the composer is closely connected with the city, having spent 20 years here.

Further afield

On an evening walk along the Vistula you'll encounter cafés, bars, open-air concerts and even real sandy beaches! Lovers of alternative culture should cross the river into Praga district, which is also where the National Stadium stands. Break your journey with a rest by the mesmerising water jets in lovely Fountain Park.

Make the most of your ECPR membership

The ECPR brings people together across the spectrum of political science and related disciplines. It offers unrivalled opportunities to collaborate with scholars who share your research interests, and to explore this constantly changing academic field he ECPR's conferences and events are a forum for lively and fruitful discussion and idea exchange, while its biannual Methods School – Summer and Winter – invites you to hone your research skills under the tutelage of internationally renowned experts.

Your institution's ECPR membership entitles you to a host of tangible benefits that will advance your studies and help further your career. Set up a MyECPR account, and make the most of them!

Your benefits include:

- ☐ Print copy of EJPR and EPSR delivered to your Official Representative
- ☐ Online access to EPS via Palgrave Macmillan
- □ 30% discount on all titles in the ECPR/OUP Comparative Politics series and 20% off all OUP politics titles
- Opportunity to direct Workshops at the Joint Sessions (Associate Members can co-direct)
- ☐ Reduced fees for the General and Graduate Student Conferences, the Joint Sessions

- of Workshops and the Summer and Winter Methods School
- ☐ Funding to attend ECPR events
- ☐ Eligibility to join a Standing Group, or to set up a new one (and receive funding)
- ☐ Online MyECPR account, where you can register for events, and propose Workshops, Sections, Panels and Papers
- Opportunities to win prizes and awards
- □ Regular e-bulletins including job alerts

The European Consortium for Political Research

The ECPR is an independent, scholarly association that supports and encourages the training, research and cross-national co-operation of political scientists through Europe and the world

Events

Each year, the ECPR organises the Joint Sessions of Workshops, Summer and Winter Schools in Methods and Techniques, the Research Sessions, and the General Conference. A Graduate Student Conference is held biennially; the next is in Tartu, Estonia, in July 2016.

Publishing

Complementing these events, and in some cases publishing research presented at them, is the ECPR's extensive publishing portfolio. It has its own publishing imprint, ECPR Press, and co-publishes three leading journals: European Political Science, European Journal of Political Research, and European Political Science Review.

It also publishes two high-profile book series, Comparative Politics and Research Methods, in association with academic publishers.

Standing Groups

These are groups of researchers, in many cases formed at ECPR events, with a shared scholarly interest.

Some Standing Groups are small, maintaining only a website and mailing list; some organise major conferences and summer schools, and produce their own publications.

There are currently more than 40 Standing Groups, covering many sub-fields of the discipline. All are eligible to apply for grants to help with the Group's organisation, and with the running of summer schools.

Prizes

Each year, the ECPR marks the achievements of its members by awarding a number of prizes. These cover the spectrum of a scholar's career, from the Jean Blondel PhD Prize to the Lifetime Achievement Award.

Membership

ECPR membership is institutional and currently comprises more than 300 universities concerned with the teaching and research of political science. While membership is paid by the university, it is the individuals within it who receive the benefit; from Master's and PhD students, through to the most senior professor.

Executive Committee

The ECPR's Executive Committee is a Board of twelve Trustees, elected by Council every three years

The Executive Committee is responsible for the ECPR's day-to-day running, and its long-term development. Drawn from Full-Member institutions, EC members serve a six-year term, with six new members elected every three years. Each member holds a portfolio covering an area of ECPR work - for example, Publications or the Joint Sessions - and are paired with their counterpart at Central Services to take the work in this area forward. The outgoing EC elects a Chair Designate from the members who have another three years to serve.

This year's Joint Sessions marks the end of the current EC's term of office, including that of its first female Chair, Simona Piattoni. The ECPR would like to extend its warmest thanks to Professor Piattoni for her tireless efforts over her successful three-year Chairship. Thanks are due also to the other outgoing members of the current EC: Niilo Kauppi, Jonas Tallberg and Manuel Sánchez de Dios.

The ECPR welcomes to the EC for the 2015 - 2018 term Maurizio Carbone (University of Glasgow), Kris Deschouwer (Vrije Universiteit Brussel), Reuven Hazan (Hebrew University of Jerusalem), Petri Koikkalainen (University of Lapland) and Anna M Sroka (University of Warsaw). It is also delighted to welcome back Mary Farrell (University of Plymouth) and Birgit Sauer (University of Vienna) who were both re-elected after being coopted onto the EC during the last term. They will join continuing members Klaus Goetz, Ólafur Þ Harðarson, Richard S Katz and Luca Verzichelli, and new Chair Rudy Andeweg.

Jean Blondel PhD Prize

Carolina Plescia Trinity College Dublin and Universität Wien Split-Ticket Voting in Mixed-Member Electoral Systems: A Theoretical and Methodological

The Blondel Prize jury, which was unanimous in its choice of winner, was last year chaired by Peter Kennealy (EUI, Florence) and also comprised Josep Colomer (Institute for Economic Analysis, Barcelona), Rainer Forst (Goethe-Universität, Frankfurt am Main) and Martin Westlake (College of Europe, Bruges and LSE [visiting]).

Investigation

arolina Plescia examines the why and the how of splitticket voting, combining methodological analysis of the New Zealand and Scottish parliamentary elections, a comparative study across ten mixed-member electoral systems, and two in-depth case studies (regional elections in Japan and Italy).

The dissertation embodies a number of innovations: using individual and aggregate data (proving, in the process, that a composite approach provides more accurate understanding); a comparative rather than case study approach (though illuminated by the two case studies at the end); separating intentional versus forced split-ticket voting; and using the Scottish and New Zealand legislative elections to test the reliability of the predictive model.

Plescia enhances electoral analysis by taking a nuanced approach that relies not upon intuitive assumptions, but on measuring and evaluating real behaviour. Her findings are notably similar across countries, and she highlights some interesting differences across types of mixed systems and levels of experience with electoral rules.

A significant research effort, Plescia's thesis undermines such assumptions as the one-party preference, and points the way forward to further research. The jury considered the quantitative and qualitative research to be well carried out, and the whole dissertation to be elegantly constructed and a pleasure to read.

Michal Parízek Charles University in Prague

International Organisations' Quest for Information: the Politics of Secretariat Staffing

This Paper was presented at the 2014 Joint Sessions in Salamanca. Michal Parízek was awarded the Prize from a field of eleven candidates, all of whom submitted excellent papers. The jury was chaired by Manuel Sánchez de Dios (Universidad Complutense de Madrid), Rudy Andeweg (Universiteit Leiden), Jonas Tallberg (Stockholms universitet) and Ioannis Papadopoulos (Université de Lausanne).

aking the principal-agent approach, Parízek analyses how international institutions work, and how they are controlled by their secretariats. He presents a clear, intuitive observation: powerful member states control the staff of international organisations (IOs) and use this control to minimise delegation costs by aligning the interests and views of their agents with their own. This hampers the efforts of IOs to collect the information they need about their client countries.

Without personnel from client countries, IOs cannot access soft information about institutional, social, and cultural conditions. As a consequence, tension arises between the requirement of powerful states to control IOs through their staffing policy, and IOs' need for information about the countries with which they work.

In his empirical study, Parízek found that, indeed, the pattern of IO staffing is aligned very closely to the size of the population and the economy of the client country. But from the perspective of access to information about client countries, this is a dysfunctional pattern of representation. As a result, many IOs act partly against the formal rules and over-represent developing countries. While powerful states attempt to control IOs through their staffing policies, the quest by international organisations for information about their client countries modifies the general representation patterns.

Legitimation Policies in the Course of European Integration: Post-Democracy on the Rise?

Christiane Barnickel is a teaching and research assistant currently writing her PhD thesis on the post-democratisation of political actors' self-legitimation strategies. Her research also focuses on discourse studies, and national parliaments in Europe.

The jury, chaired by Mary Farrell (Plymouth University), also included Ólafur Þ Harðarson (Háskóli Íslands), Manuel Sánchez de Dios (Universidad Complutense de Madrid), and Niilo Kauppi (Institut d'études politiques, Strasbourg).

he committee consider this paper to be topical and highly relevant to the concerns of the discipline. It offers a coherent, well-informed discussion of the literature, supported by a contextual background and a theoretically rich set of arguments balanced by empirical findings.

Barnickel's well constructed, focused paper outlines a methodology and conclusions that suggest a rich vein of research for future exploration.

Marketplace or Public Arena? Truth and Policy-Making in Democracy

Tuesday 31 March, 17:30 Auditorium, Old Library Building

s liberal democracy equipped to come to terms with the pressure of uncertainty that seems to dominate today's climate of opinion? Can it provide a clear and convincing message to counterbalance the doubts and disappointments? Can we overcome the crisis of democratic legitimacy, sticking with traditional principles, drifting on the currents of routine wisdom and expertise? Is democratic policy-making based on reliable 'truths' that can ensure a sense of purpose and security? Or is it involved in a drama of contingent, petty manoeuvring?

This lecture aims to identify fundamental contradictions underlying late modern, democratic policy-making. Displaying their philosophical undertones, Professor Filipowicz will focus on connecting political matters to more fundamental questions, referring to the predicament of late modernity.

Stanisław Filipowicz is a professor at the University of Warsaw and an ordinary member of the Polish Academy of Science.

His research concentrates on the history of political ideas and political philosophy; interests include the liberal tradition and the problems of the Enlightenment, and crises of democracy in the late modern era. Recently, his focus has shifted towards embracing the challenges posed by the erosion of classical (modern) patterns of democracy.

Many of his books address the main currents of liberal thinking, exploring the patterns of rationality originating in the tradition of the Enlightenment and investigating their decay.

His major publications include In Praise of Reason and Virtue – Republican Creed of America (Foundation Stefan Batory, 1997), Democracy: The Power of Illusion (Peter Lang, 2013) and A History of Political and Legal Thought (Arche, 2001).

Transition and the Quality of Democracy

Guest of Honour

Lech Wałesa

Monday 30 March, 17:30 Auditorium, Old Library Building

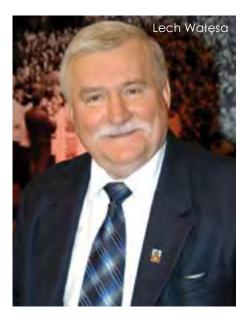

Chair Simona Piattoni Introduction Stanisław Sulowski

Speakers

Andrzej Antoszewski University of Wrocław Leonardo Morlino LUISS University Simona Guerra University of Leicester Speakers will address the question What helps consolidate the transition to democracy? Is a return to free elections a sufficient democratic safeguard — and do the regained freedoms of expression and participation allow the re-emergence of deep social and economic cleavages?

The Roundtable will examine the role of specific individuals at particular historical junctures, and look at the challenges European democracies face in preserving and improving their quality in the context of an interconnected Union.

In all these questions, Poland represents a crucial test case.

Practical information

Getting around the city of Warsaw

Warsaw's public transport system, ZTM, includes buses, trams and metro connections. Find general information about public transport at www.ztm.waw.pl

See also the options in the 'Getting around' section at www.warsawtour. pl/en/niezb-dnik.html

www.jakdojade.pl

To get information about public transport timetables by telephone, call +48 19 115 from a landline or +48 22 19 115 from a mobile.

You can buy tickets for all public transport at ZTM points, in some newspaper kiosks and in metro stations, which take cash or debit cards. Instructions on ticket machines are in Polish, English and German.

The Warsaw metropolitan area is divided into urban Zone 1 (within the city limits) and suburban Zone 2. A ticket covering both zones is more expensive.

Ticket prices in Zone 1, for all kinds of public transport; interchangeable

75-minute ticket

Normal 4,40 PLN Reduced 2,20 PLN

20-minute ticket

Normal 3,40 PLN Reduced 1,70 PLN

Reduced tickets may be used only by international students holding a valid International Student Identity Card. People over 70 years of age (must be proven with valid ID) travel free.

Buses and trams

Buses have a three-digit numbering system.

1xx, 2xx, 3xx Regular lines, stopping at all marked stops

4xx, 5xx Accelerated lines (marked in red on board buses)

E-x Lines operating in peak hours on weekdays (marked in red on board buses)

7xx Suburban lines

8xx Suburban lines operating on weekdays

Nxx Night buses operating between 11.15 and 04:30.

Trams have a one- or two-digit numbering system.

Metro

In Warsaw there are two metro lines. The first goes direct from Zoliborz (Mlociny station) to the southern part of the city (Ursynów, served by Kabaty station). The second goes direct from Wola (Rondo Daszyńskiego station) to the eastern part of the city, Praga (Dworzec Wileński station). The Metro runs daily between 05:00 and midnight, every 3 – 4 minutes during peak hours, every 7 – 8 minutes at offpeak times. Additional services run every 15 minutes on Fridays and Saturdays between 00:15 and 02:30.

See www.metro.waw.pl

Taxis

It is strongly recommended that you travel only in official Warsaw taxis. You can recognise these by:

- ☐ A sticker showing fares on the right-hand rear window
- A mermaid crest, a yellow-andred stripe and fleet number on the front doors
- ☐ A licence plate number and vehicle registration number sticker on the windscreen
- ☐ A taxi lamp on the roof.

 Order your taxis by telephone from one of the city's radio taxi companies.

 Current maximum legal rates:

 Starting fee 8 PLN

Zone 1 day fare 3 PLN per km Zone 1 night fare, and day fare on Sundays and holidays 4.50 PLN per km

Zone 2 day fare 6 PLN per km Zone 2 night fare, and day fare on Sundays and holidays 9 PLN per km Cost for the driver to wait for the passenger for an hour 40 PLN

Cash

Poland's currency is the Polish Złoty (PLN). One PLN = 100 groszy.

In certain larger stores, such as hypermarkets, and at some cash-only outlets, you can pay in € if you notify the cashier beforehand. However, the Euro is not yet a popular currency in Poland, so the chances are your change will be given in PLN.

Currency should be exchanged at a registered exchange centre; no commission will be charged.

Emergency telephone numbers

From a landline or public payphone: Ambulance 999, Fire 998, Police 997.

If calling from a mobile, dial 112 and ask for the relevant service (English speaker not guaranteed to answer).

Emergency numbers for speakers of English, German or Russian. These will work from a mobile or a landline: +48 608 599 999

+48 22 278 77 77

Lunch / coffee

See leaflet in your conference bag for information on cafés and restaurants.

Democratic Reform and Consolidation: the Cases of Mexico and Turkey

Evren Celik Wiltse

'Partly free' societies account for roughly a quarter of the world's population, across around 60 countries. Such countries are not authoritarian regimes, yet their political systems suffer significant democratic deficiencies. What are the conditions for democratic improvement? How do societies with some degree of development create free, open regimes? Examining Mexico and Turkey in comparative perspective, Celik Wiltse tackles those questions.

Concepts and Reason in Political Theory lain Hampsher-Monk

A selection of Hampsher-Monk's writings on questions of historicity and rationality in political theory. The work revolves around the relationship between history and philosophy in the analysis of key concepts such as liberty, democracy and toleration, and the role of reason in political science's explanations. Despite a background in PPE, the author played a major role in the 'historical', revolution in political theory, and his contributions to and reflections on this are included in the volume.

The European Public Servant: A Shared Administrative Identity?

Patrick Overeem Fritz Sager (Eds)

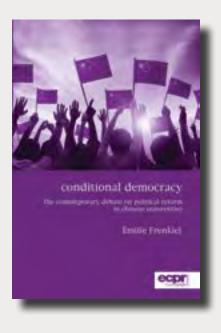

European integration is under pressure. At the same time, the notion of a European administrative space is being explicitly voiced. But does a shared idea of the public servant exist in Europe? This volume shows how the public servant has been conceived throughout history, and asks whether such conceptions are converging towards a common European administrative identity. A timely analysis that aims to integrate historical ideas and cutting-edge research.

The Contemporary Debate on Political Reform in Chinese Universities

Émilie Frenkiel

This book focuses on the debate on political reform in China among politically committed Chinese academics, revealing the great diversity of aspirations for change among the elites. Mapping this debate reveals scholars' yearnings and fears, enables us to understand the conceptions of the current regime held by Chinese intellectuals, and to identify the fault lines that have appeared since the June Fourth repression.

Lauri Karvonen

Finland's modern, technologically advanced welfare state is, in fact, a fairly recent creation, and it's this that makes the Finnish case interesting. Lauri Karvonen examines Finland in a comparative perspective, telling the story of what happens to parties, governments and voters when the fundamental features that condition party formation and voter alignments undergo rapid – and late – transformation.

ERIS -

European Review of International Studies

ERIS seeks to be a journal to which those who wish to know what is happening in 'European' International Relations can turn. It aims to achieve this goal by an extensive review section of monographs published in European languages and review articles of the literature on substantive themes or significant developments in different European academic communities. Its other principal goal is to publish original articles and from time to time translations of existing major articles not readily available in English.

Asimina Michailidou - Hans-Jörg Trenz - Pieter de Wilde The Internet and European Integration

Pro- and Anti-EU debates in Online News Media

This book offers a wealth of original empirical data on how online media shape EU contestation. Taking a public sphere perspective, the authors highlight the myths and truths about the nature of audience-driven online media content and show how public demands for legitimacy are at the heart of the much-analyzed politicization of European integration. What EU citizens most intensely debate online are the fundamental questions of what the European institutions stand for and how they can be held accountable.

Jerzy J. Wlatr

Polish-German Relations

The Miracle of Reconciliation

The book constitutes a sociological analysis of the origins of the Polish-German antagonism in the nineteenth and twentieth century and of the process of overcoming it. The author discusses the role played by the religious and political leaders as well as intellectuals of both nations and presents survey research data showing the marked improvement in mutual relations.
